Nagaland Stipend for Girls of Secondary Students

Nagaland gives a stipend to girls of Class IX and X from poor families who study in government high schools and higher secondary schools. The school nominates the girls.

What you may get

Girls chosen by their school get a stipend through the Directorate of School Education. The rate has changed over the years, so ask the Directorate for the present amount.

Who it is for

Girl students of Class IX and X in government high schools or government higher secondary schools in Nagaland, from economically weaker families.

Main conditions

- The student must be a girl in Class IX or X.
- She must study in a government high school or government higher secondary school.
- She must belong to an economically weaker family.
- The school nominates two girls from each class.

How to apply

1. Girls do not apply directly. The headmaster or principal of the government school nominates two girls from each class.
2. The school sends the nominations to the Directorate of School Education with the PCR at the end of the academic session.
