Grant in aid to Voluntary Organisation in the Child Welfare

The Meghalaya Social Welfare Department gives grants to voluntary organisations that work for the welfare and development of children, including street and working children.

What you may get

Financial assistance, funded 100 percent, to voluntary organisations working for children in rural areas and for street and working children. It covers care and protection, education, food and clothing for the children.

Who it is for

Voluntary organisations (NGOs) in Meghalaya working for orphans, street children and working children. Individual children do not apply directly; the organisation applies.

Main conditions

- The organisation must work for the care and growth of rural children, or for street children and child labourers.
- The children served are orphans and street children, who need care and protection, education, food and clothing.
